The Russian fleet in Rumania was dislodged, and, as there was no open province whence to retreat, it was removed from play. Bob Ward did not get his orders for his units to me by this date ( some time after the deadline), and I suppose he never would. The French and Russians traded occupancy in Bohemia, the French landed an army in Britain, and The Austrians and Russians fought over Galicia, with the Russians being pushed out of that last-named province. The Russian army will have to retreat to Silesia, Warsaw, or Ukraina.

Supply Center Count:

Austria: 3 Home, and VEN= remains constant

England: 3 Home, NWI& DEN, HOL, KIE=may build one unit

France: 3 home, SPA, POR, MUN=may build one unit

Russia: 4Home, SWE=remains constant

TURKEY: 3 Home, Bul, Gre=may build one unit

Again, the forces in this game are now closing all over the board. Action in the Balkens has been tight since the beginning of the game, but only in the last seasons has contact been made between England and France.

Curiously, there is no lengthy Turkish press release this time; that's because I cleverly have already published it!

Curiously, there are no other games to run in the current issue; in fact, I will not even bother to type a second page now. I have on hand (although I set them down to type this page) the MM orders and press releases for 1967MAA, but I want to hold them off until next issue.
